

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to acknowledge my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Jay S. Samant, Professor and Head, Department of Environmental Science, Shivaji University, and my research guide, for suggesting the research problem and providing valuable guidance and encouragement throughout the period of my research.

I am also thankful to Dr. Anuradha J. Samant for valuable academic suggestions, particularly in social survey, and constant encouragement during the research work.

During the research tenure, particularly at the time of fieldwork, as well as at the time of completion of the dissertation, help rendered by my colleagues and close friends namely Nita Ghadge, Prashant Banne, Sandeep Sohani, Prasad Wagh and Sonali Ghadge is acknowledged with great affection.

This work would not have been completed without the help rendered by the brick kiln workers and the local people of the villages studied. I also wish to express my feelings to all the teaching and non-teaching staff in the Department of Environmental Science, Shivaji University, Kolhapur.

I will fail in my duties if I do not recall my warm feelings towards my father, mother, husband and family members and others for their patience and support. They have provided continuous inspiration, encouragement, blessing and good wishes.
