I OFFER my grateful thanks to Dr. M.J.Kashalikar, Vice-Principal and Head of the Department of Sociology, Devachand College, Arjunagar, under whose encouragement and learned guidance the present work was carried out and completed. He not only inspired and initiated me in this study but developed in me a taste for research and a vision of the subject.

I express my thanks to Dr. S.N.Pawar, Head of the Dept. of Sociology, Shivaji University, Kolhapur, who has been my teacher and adviser in my post-graduate and M.Phil. course. He has been very sympathetic adviser in my difficulties and my entire academic career stands on his valuable help.

I will be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge my indebtedness to our Principal Mr. M.N.Wadwan for having kindly allowed me to join M.Phil course and for having provided necessary facilities to complete this work.

I express my sincere gratitude also to Prof. M.S.Shaikh, Prof. S.N.Deshpande, Prof. S.G.Bawane, who helped in every stage of my study.

I also express my thanks to Shri. Ratikant Tale, M.A., M.S.W., Miss B.S.Joshi, Shri. R.S.Joshi, and librarians of Shivaji University and the Local Colleges in Solapur who supplied me books and valuable information.

I know that this list is not complete, but I also know that many friends and acquaintances who helped me will know of the gratitude in my heart.

M.R.PATIL,
