The present research work was carried out at the Shivaji University, Kolhapur under the guidance of Dr. T.G. Naik. When I was living in the ivory tower of research Dr. T.G. Naik, my research guide, by incisive comments and suggestions and his rigorous way of doing things made me realise the rigorous and exacting standards of research. If I have succeeded at least partly to live up to his expectations it is due to his constant encouragement and patient bearing with me at all stages.

I am thankful to the authorities of the University Grants Commission, New Delhi for awarding me a Teacher Fellowship (1986-87) which enabled me to complete my M.Phil. Course and also this dissertation. I am thankful to the Head of Department of Economics Dr. V.B. Ghuge for extending generously his co-operation with me while undergoing the M.Phil. Course.
